Chapter 1 by Chad

(Note: This story is a random test by the user to see how the website works. Thanks. c:)

There once was a man who wanted to start writing collaborations with other people because just writing alone becomes boring or tiring at times, right? Plus, it's hard to gain motivation to write something for other people to read especially if one thinks it's not good enough. This man joins a website where he believes there will be people there to help him along the way.

Chapter 2 by robin hood

The man meets many other people, all with different styles of writing. He likes the website, and becomes one of the most famous users. He smiles as his name passes intellikat's. But then he notices a new name on the first page, which is steadily rising up. He cracks his knuckles...

Chapter 3 by Chad

...And WHAM! He types at the speed of light! Typing over hundreds and hundreds per minute, this man will fight to keep his name up at the top. Even if it means to stay up for long, arduous hours at a time to make sure his Kingly Crown of Writing isn't taken away from him

Before long, the other writers of Story Wars begin to notice him, which drafts are being voted on, and the one that wins becomes his name, the writers police.

Some feel challenged.

A particular writer did.

"Hmm, this person won a lot of drafts..." A Story Wars Writer thinks.

"BUT" He starts writing a draft in a story he feels comfortable with.

He concludes his story, clicking the submit draft button. After which, a confirmation message pops up.

"Well, well new writer. Let's see how you fare against my pen." he monologues as he "Challenge a friend".

Extra:

"Wait, he isn't my friend on this site..."

He goes to check his list of friends and-

"Yeah..."

"Maybe I should send him a challenge through FB, maybe? But I don't know him personally..."

Hmmmm...
